Contents

Introduction
Reproductive decision-making: towards improved theoretical, methodological and empirical approaches .......................................................... 1
Maria Rita Testa, Tomáš Sobotka and Philip S. Morgan

Demographic Debate
Is the Theory of Planned Behaviour an appropriate model for human fertility? ................................................................................................................. 11
S. Philip Morgan and Christine A. Bachrach
Comparing the TPB and the T-D-I-B framework .................................................. 19
Warren B. Miller
The Theory of Planned Behaviour: considering drives, proximity and dynamics ............................................................................................................. 31
Jennifer Barber
Theories on fertility intentions: a demographer’s perspective ..................... 37
Dimiter Philipov
The Theory of Planned Behaviour as a model of reasoning about fertility decisions ........................................................................................................... 47
Jane Klobas
On the usefulness of the Theory of Planned Behaviour for fertility research .......................................................... 55
Aart C. Liefbroer
Reflections on Morgan and Bachrach’s critique ........................................... 63
Icek Ajzen
Further reflections on the Theory of Planned Behaviour and fertility research ........................................................................................................ 71
Christine A. Bachrach and S. Philip Morgan
Refereed Articles

Differences between fertility desires and intentions: implications for theory, research and policy.................................................................75
Warren B. Miller

Uncertainty in fertility intentions in Britain, 1979-2007.................................99
Máire Ní Bhrolcháin and Éva Beaujouan

Fertility preferences: what measuring second choices teaches us...........131
Saskia Hin, Anne Gauthier, Joshua Goldstein and Christoph Bühler

Couples’ childbearing behaviour in Italy: which of the partners is leading it?.............................................................157
Maria Rita Testa, Laura Cavalli and Alessandro Rosina

The influence of the family network on the realisation of fertility intentions.................................................................179
Nicoletta Balbo and Melinda Mills

Intergenerational transmission of fertility intentions and behaviour in Germany: the role of contagion.................................................207
Markus Kotte and Volker Ludwig

Educational differentials in fertility intentions and outcomes: family formation in Flanders in the early 1990s.............................227
David De Wachter and Karel Neels

Family policies, norms about gender roles and fertility decisions in France and Germany..........................................................259
Clémentine Rossier, Sara Brachet and Anne Salles

Baby longing and men’s reproductive motivation ..................................283
Anna Rotkirch, Stuart Basten, Heini Väisänen and Markus Jokela

Does parenthood increase happiness? Evidence for Poland...............307
Anna Baranowska and Anna Matysiak

Data & Trends (non-refereed contributions)

Design and implementation of an online weekly survey to study unintended pregnancies.........................................................327
Jennifer S. Barber, Yasamin Kusunoki and Heather Gatny

Couples disagreement about fertility preferences and family-friendly policy measures in the Czech Republic..................335
Beatrice Chromková Manea and Petr Fučík